CORN HITS HIGHEST MARK IN 11 YEARS

FUTURES CLIMB OVER WHEAT AS HEAT CONTINUES

Three Cents More Offered For September Delivery Than Golden Grain

PRICE EASY AT OPENING

Major Portion Of Region Suffering Under Sun

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—(UP)—Corn futures boomed to a new high since 1927 in a fresh burst of speculative buying on the Chicago Board of Trade. Cash corn was at a new high since 1925.

After easing at the start of trading, prices rocketed upward on heavy buying by panic-stricken shorts who realized that corn available for delivery in September was becoming increasingly scarce.

During the second hour of the session corn futures were up 2 to 2 1/2 cents a bushel, September selling at $1.18 1/2, the highest in nine years.

September corn was quoted at a premium of 3 cents a bushel over the same delivery of wheat, the second time that corn has become more valuable than wheat since 1930.

Crop Is Withering
Meanwhile Charles E. Reed, federal meteorologist in Des Moines, Ia., reported that Iowa's crop continued to wither under a parching sun.

"Field examination shows that new tassels are furnishing an abundance of pollen capable of fertilizing any silks that are receptive in the cooler hours," he said.

The scramble to buy wheat futures which has skyrocketed prices over 50 cents a bushel in six weeks was accelerated today by the realization that with almost 10,000,000 bushels of corn needed to meet September delivery contracts in Chicago there are only 185,000 bushels of contract corn in local elevators.

Although scattered showers fell over sections of Iowa and southern Wisconsin last night the major portion of the corn belt sweltered under the same blazing sun that has cut crop prospects in half since June 1.

GOVERNOR OLSON URGES LIBERALS TO ASSIST F. D. R.

ROCHESTER, Minn., Aug. 19.—(UP)—Gov. Floyd B. Olson, Minnesota's ailing leader of liberal forces, today declared himself strongly for re-election of President Roosevelt.

In a telegram, dictated from his sick bed in St. Mary's hospital, Olson voiced his sentiments to Sen. Robert M. LaFollette, Wisconsin progressive who had invited the Minnesota executive to join in a conference of progressive leaders in September.

Olson's reply expressed sympathy for the Union party candidate, William Lemke, and the monetary reforms advocated by Gov. Charles E. Coughlin and his National Union for Social Justice, but said:

"X X liberals must unite in 1936 to re-elect President Roosevelt and prevent election of reactionary Alfred Landon and to promote unity for the future."

He warned against a split in progressive and liberal ranks which he said would "play into the hands of the Wall Street gang."

"I have the utmost respect for the Union ticket candidacy of William Lemke and for Father Coughlin, whose program of monetary reform is sound."

"However, I think the defeat of Landon is of the utmost importance to the great masses of America," the governor wired.

RESCUE CREWS BRAVING DEATH TO SEEK MINERS

Four Workmen Trapped 110 Feet Below Surface In Missouri

TONS OF DEBRIS FACED

Inspector Fears Black Damp May Have Killed Men

MOBERLY, Mo., Aug. 19.—(UP)—Mine rescue crews, harassed by water and poison gas, worked through tons of debris today in an effort to reach four men trapped 110 feet below the surface in a coal mine.

Earlier estimates that the way would be cleared shortly were revised and Arnold Griffith, state mine inspector, said it might be 48 hours before the men were reached.

No sound has come from the miners to indicate that they still live.

Chance Is Slight

"There is just a chance they are alive," Griffith said. "Perhaps if we can break through in 48 hours we may save them."

The entombed men are Ed Storer, Jr., 22, Demetrius Sexton, 32, Jack McCann, 45, and George T. Dammerson, a negro mule driver. Sexton and Storer hold the lease on the mine.

Seven rescuers collapsed from the black damp and smoke choking the mine and were revived by pulmotors at the mine mouth. Their companions, wearing gas masks, kept grimly at their task despite all but impossible handicaps.

The four men were trapped yesterday afternoon by fire that de-

APPLE TREE IN COOK'S YARD THINKS IT'S SPRING

One branch of an apple tree in the back yard of A. C. Cook, N. Court street, thinks it's spring.

Harp Van Riper, a neighbor of Mr. Cook's, has watched the antics of the branch closely. He brought an apple blossom to The Herald office Wednesday noon to prove his story.

Ronny Hennis, 6, son of Mrs. Merle Hennis, South Bloomfield, suffered a concussion of the brain, laceration on the chin and body bruises Tuesday evening when he was struck by an automobile on Route 23 about 50 feet south of the Bloomfield corporation line.

The child was partially unconscious when treated by Dr. R. S. Hosler. His condition was reported improved Wednesday morning.

He was struck by a Plymouth coupe being driven south by Rev. J. Barthelmas, 918 S. Court street, accompanied by his wife. Deputy Sheriff Miller Fissel who investigated the accident, said the child ran into the path of the automobile around a truck parked on the west side of the highway. The truck, operated by J. M. Lloyd, Bidwell, O., had been parked for wheel repairs.

Residents said the child was going to the intersection of Route 23 and the Ashville road to get newspapers thrown from a bus. He was taken to the office of Dr. Hosler by William Murray, South Bloomfield garage proprietor, then removed to his home.

The accident was reported at 6 p. m.

Education Board Meets To Discuss Opening Plans; Repairs Completed

MRS. WARD TO SUBSTITUTE

Margaret Rooney Assigned To Succeed Miss Yates

Circleville board of education is moving gradually toward opening another school term Monday, Sept. 14, although a vacancy remains in the high school faculty.

There are 1,625 pupils in the city.

Efforts of Superintendent Frank Fischer to find a commercial and biology teacher to fill the vacancy left by resignation of C. Alton Day have gone for naught, although the educator thought Monday he had three persons for consideration. When time came for Tuesday evening's board meeting all had informed him they had obtained employment elsewhere.

The school board has completed redecorating all the city schools this summer, and plans for furnace repairs at the high school, Corwin and Walnut street schools were discussed Tuesday.

Mrs. Ward to Teach

The board approved appointment of Mrs. Elizabeth Helwage Ward as substitute for Miss Virginia Marion, who was injured in an early-summer automobile accident and will be unable to resume her work in the Franklin street fourth grade until after midyear.

Supt. Fischer informed the board Tuesday that he had assigned Miss Margaret Rooney, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. J. Rooney, to the eighth grade English position, formerly filled by Miss Emily Yates, retired.

Assignment of other teachers is expected to take place within the next week. Several changes in the teaching corps have resulted in several transfers in the staff. The superintendent has been studying the assignment for several weeks, and reported Wednesday the positions will be announced in a few days.

C. R. Barnhart, clerk of the school board, was authorized Tuesday to write school boards of Circleville and Wayne townships concerning contracts for tuition pupils.

TOWNSEND CASE IS DELAYED BY CHIEF'S ILLNESS

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—(UP)—Postponement to Monday of the appearance of Dr. Francis E. Townsend at a Cleveland receivership hearing was granted today by Judge George Kerr of Cuyahoga county common pleas court, according to George H. Hubbell, Townsend attorney.

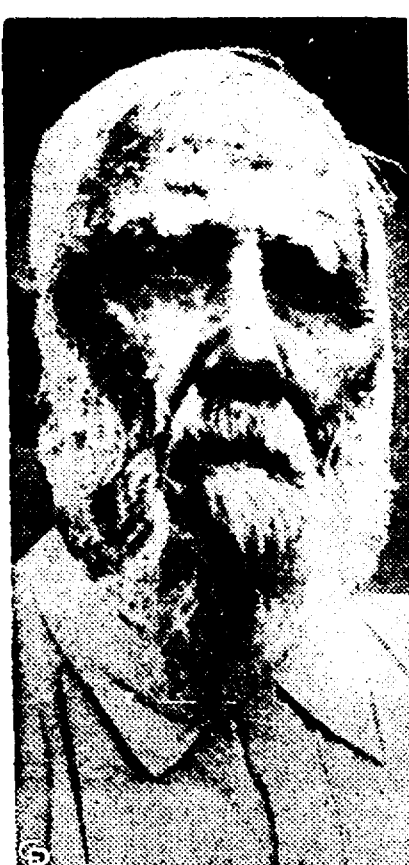

Hubbell requested the continuance, he said, because Dr. Townsend still suffered from a breakdown brought on by exertion of a lengthy speaking tour and excessive heat. The continuance was granted by Judge Kerr in a telephonic conversation from Cleveland, he said.

Townsend's appearance was sought by attorneys for the Rev. Alfred J. Wright, former Ohio manager of O.A.R.P., who asks an accounting of $1,000,000 allegedly contributed to the pension movement and appointment of receivers.

No special meetings have been held by members to line up their recommendations.

PICKAWAY GIVEN CHANCE TO SEE HUSKING JOUST

Pickaway county is being considered for the national cornhusking contest this year, but there is faint hope it will be assigned here, F. K. Blair, county extension agent, reported Wednesday.

Mr. Blair said he had been asked by L. L. Rummell, Columbus, associated with The Ohio Farmer, to check over the county for fields of corn large enough and suitable for a national contest. Blair reported only one field large enough was found. He doubted if it would meet with requirements. Mr. Rummell was to contact Mr. Blair late Wednesday or Thursday for his report.

Since Missouri cancelled plans for the contest this year because of the condition of corn, the event will be held in Ohio. Officials in charge hope to select a site in the central part of the state.

REDUCED WATER RATIONS FORCED IN SPANISH AREA

SAN SEBASTIAN, Aug. 19.—(UP)—The water ration of San Sebastian was cut drastically today as loyalists and besieging rebels resumed fighting.

Townpeople watched fearfully for the rebel warships which shelled San Sebastian and nearby Irun yesterday. They killed four persons and wounded 48, mostly women and children.

There was no sign of the fleet by mid morning. A wireless message was intercepted from the 7,850 ton rebel cruiser Almirante Cervera asking for help and requesting rebel leaders to name a port into which it could put urgently.

This was regarded as confirmation of loyalist reports that during the shelling late yesterday a loyalist airplane bomb struck the ship opening a breach in its side near the water line and causing a big explosion. The ship made off toward the west and was reported from points along the coast to be listing badly.

Loyalist Soldiers Kill 400

LISBON, Portugal, Aug. 19.—The Rebel radio station at Seville charged today that Loyalists had executed 400 prisoners including the bishop of Jaen and his mother, at Villa Verde while they were being conducted to Madrid.

The station said the Rebels in Andalusia had occupied Higuera De La Sierra and Aracena, where they annihilated the defenders. Many of the latter threw themselves into the river and were drowned.

180 Persons Killed

The newspaper Seculo said the Rebels captured Baenam of Cordoba, coming to the rescue of beleaguered civil guards who were on the point of surrendering after an 11-day siege during which the Loyalists killed 180 persons of 500 whom they had locked up in the San Francisco asylum.

Seculo said the civil guard at Baena had revolted and took refuge in the telephone building after the Loyalists had surrounded and entered the city. The newspapers said the Loyalists sacked the city, robbed the chief property owner of 1,000,000 pesetas and then burned him alive in his garden before his wife and daughter.

Five churches were destroyed, including the Madre De Dios, the only example of its type in Spain.

MANY DELEGATES REGISTERED FOR CAMP SESSIONS

The Vanguard delegates from churches of Christian Union throughout central and southern Ohio were arriving in Circleville Wednesday for the opening sessions of the camp meeting at the Mount of Praise, E. Ohio street.

At noon Rev. O. L. Ferguson, pastor of the local church and camp grounds superintendent, estimated 300 delegates registered and others were arriving so fast it was impossible to keep an accurate count at that time.

The council sessions opened at 2:30 p. m. Wednesday with a devotional service in charge of Rev. Willard Cozad, Wellston. An address by Rev. E. A. Keaton, Chillicothe, camp moderator, followed. After his address committees of the council were to be named.

The first young people's meeting will be held at 5:45 p. m. with Rev. Roy Appleman, Athensville, in charge. Public preaching will be held at 8 p. m. with Rev. Ross Hayslip, West Union, as the speaker. All interested persons are invited to attend the preaching services.

Officers of the council will be elected at 7:30 a. m. Thursday. Delegates from the churches bring instructions to the council for the assignment of pastors. The council sessions close Saturday with the regular camp meeting sessions opening on Sunday.

BRITISH ANXIOUS DESPITE ITALY'S PLEA FOR PEACE

Count Ciano Tells English His Nation Not Seeking Insurgent Agreement

FLEET MANEUVERS NEAR

French Planes, Men Arrive To Assist Loyalists

Copyright 1936 By United Press
LONDON, Aug. 19.—(UP)—Great Britain has received assurances that Premier Benito Mussolini shares its anxiety to prevent the spread of the Spanish Civil war into a war that would engulf all Europe, it was said authoritatively today.

The assurances were given by Count Galeazzo Ciano, foreign minister, it was said, and included a statement that Italy had not attempted, and cherished no ambition, to conclude any arrangement with Spanish insurgents regarding the future status of Morocco or the Balearic islands.

That the assurances were given, or were needed, was due to a series of events that were moving Europe again toward a vortex of possible war.

Maneuvers to Start

Italian war maneuvers start next Tuesday; British secret maneuvers will start off Monday. In Italy, then, days before the British, the Italian navy, under Sir Samuel Hoare, first lord of the admiralty, personally attending, France will hold maneuvers—in the Spanish and Italian theater areas—September 7, and one day later Russia has its giga-manueuvres, with a British military mission, first since the Bolshevik revolution, in attendance.

British authorities said they believed reports of Italian mobilization, attributed to the Spanish situation, were inaccurate because they contrasted with the assurances which Italy gave the British charge d'affaires at Rome.

Germany, too, has softened its position, and regarding a proposed neutrality agreement, is understood to have assured the government that the United States need not be included in its stipulation that all countries which produce war material in big quantities must adhere. Only European nations are meant, it was said.

May Be Worthless

But with all these assurances, and with Italy's abandonment of its demand that Britain and France must suppress all communist hostile to the Spanish rebels, the fear grew that the proposed neutrality agreement will be worthless even if negotiated.

Reports of the last 24 hours which tended inevitably to increase tension follow:

Barcelona—one hundred foreigners arrived by express train from Paris to enlist in the loyalist workers' militia—a violation of neutrality.

London—The News Chronicle reported that 18 French army type airplanes, six bombers and 12 combat planes, arrived at Barcelona for the loyalists, piloted by French, Netherlands and Italian anti-Fascists—a violation of neutrality.

16 DEFENDANTS IN PLOT TO END SOVIET DYNASTY

Complicity In Plot Told By Several Arrested By Moscow Police

STALIN PLOT'S OBJECT

Germany Declines To Send Observer To Trial

MOSCOW, Aug. 19.—(UP)—A plot to assassinate Josef Stalin, leader of the government, Klement Voroshilov, minister of war, and two other high officials was charged today against 16 defendants put on trial for their lives. It was announced that the defendants had confessed complicity in a plot to undermine the influence of present Soviet leaders but would defend themselves—having refused counsel—against specific charges of plotting assassination.

Leading the list of defendants were Gregory Zinoviev and Leo Kameney, members of the little group of men who made Russia communist and sent a shiver through the constituted governments of the world.

Prisoners already Zinoviev serving a 10 year term and Kameney a five year one, they sat before their judges and 200 spectators crowded into the little supreme court room in the Georgian room of the Hall of Columns—the one time Nobles' club.

All rose as V. V. Ulrich, president of the council of military law of the supreme tribunal entered the court. Andrew Vishinsky, assistant chief state prosecutor, handled the case for the government.

Face Firing Squad It was ominous for the defendants that it was a military tribunal trial, for it meant they might face a firing squad.

The names of Nazi Germany and its dread secret police, the Gestapo, were expected to be heard as charged with aiding the defendants in a plot to eradicate the government and put followers of exiled Leon Trotsky, former co-dictator with Lenin, in power.

The German embassy declined an invitation to send an observer, though one of the defendants—Fritz David—is said to be a German. At the outset of the trial it was charged that David had planned to shoot Stalin at a meeting of the communist international in July, 1935, but that his seat had been so situated that he could not hit him.

Another defendant, Dimitry Schmidt, being tried in his absence, was to have killed Voroshilov, it was alleged.

Two other men were to have been removed, it was charged—G. K. Ordjonikidze, commissar for heavy industry, and Lazar Kaganovich, commissar for land transport.

NEGRO GRILLED IN TWO DEATHS; ONE CONFESSED

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—(UP)—A negro who confessed he killed attractive Mary Louise Trammell as she prepared to sleep in a hotel bedroom, was questioned about two other Chicago murders today—for one of which another man already is serving a 199 year prison term.

Rufe Swain, 27, walked into the detective bureau yesterday and denied he knew anything of the killing.

Five hours later he broke under a cross-fire of police questions and admitted he climbed through a window of Mrs. Trammell's room and surprised her as she stood in a corner preparing for bed.

He said she asked him: "What are you doing here?" "I want some money," he said and then fled.

"Then I was afraid she would scream. I picked up a water pitcher. I hit her once on the head—hard. I threw her on the bed. Then I hit her four or five times again, not so hard."

He said he ransacked the room and then fled.

He slept on a park bench that night, near the Lake Michigan shore.

But with the murder of Mrs. Trammell solved, police were most interested today in what they might learn from Swain about the murders of two other Chicago women—Mrs. Lillian Guild who was choked and beaten to death in a Y. W. C. A. room three months ago and Florence Thompson Castle, killed in her hotel room as she slept beside her seven-year-old son.

GOOD SAMARITAN

A man in search of a quiet holiday set out in a small sailing boat, his only equipment consisting of provisions and a wireless set. He sailed serenely for several days, until at last he sighted one of those liners which resemble small towns rather than ships. The appearance of the little boat created excitement on board the liner, which slowed down.

The captain was wondering whether it was a matter of going to the rescue when the holiday maker moved to his transmitter and tapped out the message, "Is there anything I can do for you?"

Irony: The nickname of South Dakota, center of the drought lands, is The Sunshine State.

EXECUTORS ASK COURT TO RULE ON LEWIS WILL

Property Involving Several Circleville Residents In Litigation

CONSTRUCTION SOUGHT

Use Of Property In Ross County City Question

CHILLICOTHE, Aug. 19.—Two executors today were joined in litigation in Ross county probate court asking for court direction in disposing of property involved under the wills of Anna M. Lewis and Mattie S. Lewis, her daughter.

Carl F. Hagemann, executor of Mattie S. Lewis estate, filed a petition through Wilby G. Hyde, his attorney, citing that the Mattie Lewis will gave to Emily McCormick, Eleanor Conway, Evelyn L. Leidlich and Lillian McComber, all the testator's right and interest in property at 33 West Second street, which interest was devised to her under the will of her mother, Anna M. Lewis.

Given Property Use The Anna M. Lewis will provided, Hagemann stated, that her two daughters, Mattie Lewis and Minnie Metcalf, were to use the property together as a residence, but that it should be sold if they ceased to use it jointly. Proceeds of such sale were to be divided among Anna M. Lewis' four children, Mattie Lewis, Minnie Metcalf, Harry Lewis and Charles C. Lewis, of Circleville, or their heirs, Hagemann cited.

His petition says that since the death of Mattie Lewis, Minnie Metcalf, executrix of the will of Anna M. Lewis, claims that by virtue of her mother's will she is vested with the duty of disposing of the property at sale and dividing the proceeds. She contends the proceeds would go on-third to Harry Lewis, one-third to herself and one-sixth each to Evelyn Leidlich and Lillian McComber, children of Charles Lewis, deceased.

Asks Directions Hagemann contends that when the premises are sold and the proceeds divided, Minnie Metcalf, as executor of the Anna Lewis estate, should pay to him, as executor of the Mattie Lewis estate, one-fourth of the net proceeds which should then be administered by him according to the will of his testator. He asks for construction of both wills relative to the real estate and the powers and duties of both executors thereto.

He specifically asked the court to rule on whether Minnie Metcalf has the sole right and duty to dispose of the property and distribute proceeds; what share or interest passed under the Mattie Lewis will to her four nieces; and whether he should abandon any claim to the real estate and amend the inventory of the Mattie Lewis estate to delete the real estate.

Says Interest Lost

He asks for the true construction of the Mattie Lewis will in the above respects, for determination of the succession and share of the real estate and that the Mattie Lewis estate receive the share and interest to which she would have been entitled if living.

In a cross-petition, Minnie Metcalf claims that the plaintiff executor and the four nieces who are beneficiaries under the Mattie Lewis will have no interest in the property or net proceeds of any sale. She claims the interest to the property passed under her mother's will and joins in the prayer of Hagemann's petition to have the court decision on the questions raised.

SI JOHNSON AIDS CARDINAL DRIVE TOWARD TITLE

CINCINNATI, Aug. 19.—(UP)—St. Johnson, a Cincinnati cast-off unworthy of recall by the Reds even after a brilliant comeback in the minors, today had the laugh on his old teammates for the second time.

Johnson, secured by the St. Louis Cardinals about 10 days ago in a four-way deal, has won two contests since his return and both were at the expense of the Reds.

He was in the box for the Cardinals in the final night game of the season here last night and gave up nine widely scattered hits as St. Louis won 4 to 1.

OWENS TO RATE MEMORIAL PRIZE AS OUTSTANDING

BERLIN, Aug. 19.—(UP)—There is but one sensible nominee for the James Sullivan memorial award for 1936 and that one is Jesse Owens, the "midnight flyer from Ohio."

He stands so far ahead of all other American athletes in the way of achievement for the year that there is no second. And there can not be a question as to his sportsmanship or character. No winner of the award—and the list includes Bobby Jones, Barney Berlinger, Jim Bausch, Glenn Cunningham, Bill Bonthron and Lawson Little—ever dominated his field more cleanly or wore his laurels more modestly than the colored Ohio sprinter.

His superb performance in the Olympics—the "Owens Olympics" as the Germans termed it—make him a natural selection for the highest award in American sport. His four gold medals would be enough to earn him a unanimous vote, but Owens did more than that. Even more important than his fete of tying or breaking an Olympic record in 13 of his 16 appearances on the track or at the jumping pit, was the manner in which he completely won over to his side the crowd which at the start of the games resented even his appearance in the stadium.

SPAIN AS POWDER KEG
A JITTERY Europe is confronted by the need to keep Spain's widespread and starkly savage civil war confined to that peninsula. The issue between the Leftist government and the Fascists in rebellion is one that leaves few big nations of Europe without strong sympathies. The problem is to keep the expression of those sympathies within such bounds that some overt act will not involve other powers in a conflict that rends a weak and isolated people.

France, whose Popular Front new government has serious economic and social problems to contend with, looks with anything but unconcern on the possibility that still another of her frontiers shall be bordered by Fascist rule. Italy, now in a larger sense a Mediterranean power, is naturally sympathetic to the Spanish revolt.

Great Britain, frantically building against a feared air attack from Germany with whom she is on outwardly friendly terms, would prefer Leftist rule to triumph in Spain. Were a Fascist government in the latter country to grant naval and airplane bases to Italy or Germany, the balance of power in the Mediterranean would be seriously affected.

France's invitation to Britain and Italy to pledge neutrality in the Spanish situation is entirely natural. The British hold, for the time being, at least, neutrality can be preserved by diplomatic means. They don't want to put themselves in a position of seeming to antagonize a group that might win the day. Because for a long time to come the course of empire contemplates continued vast trade with the Orient through the Mediterranean.

A serious and immediate problem is the extent to which European powers may sell armament and other supplies to those belligerents with whom, on the basis of their own governmental form, they naturally sympathize. In this there is some liability of involvement, not to be taken lightly at a time when fear of war hangs like a pall over Europe.

HORRIBLE EXAMPLES
ONE of the alleged marks of civic progress is that after a destructive auto accident the evidences of the wreck are promptly cleared away and citizens are apt to point with pride to a perfect restoration of the highway.

As a matter of fact the wisdom of such a proceeding may be questioned. It might lead to more careful motoring if the reminders of reckless driving were allowed to stand for a season as a warning to drivers who have little regard for their fellow travelers on the highway.

A late publication devoted to safety on the road has well said that only education can arouse the general public to effect a remedy for present-day conditions. By compiling illuminating data, education can

World At A Glance

Many Republican adepts in the science of political campaign managements complain of conditions of frightful confusion at G. O. P. headquarters in Chicago.

Illustratively, it seems that the national committee has three publicity divisions:
 1. Publicity proper.
 2. Public relations.
 3. Research.

Among these three, critics say, there is no unity of purpose; they operate independently of one another, and actually conflict to some extent.

LACK OF MANAGEMENT

I got my initial hint of the existence of this mixed up state of affairs from a very loyal Republican who was connected with the G. O. P.'s publicity organization in President Hoover's day and during the 1932 campaign.

He is a highly intelligent young newspaperman. He always knew and confidentially admitted that Hooverian publicity was terrible; that the Californian was an almost impossible candidate to advertise properly—in 1932 anyway. He is jealous of his party's present setup, for he has a much better job now than he could get in its auspices. He simply is an impartial commentator. Impartial except that it is to his business interest to have Governor Landon win, and it perturbs him to have the Kansan's chances damaged by what he considers bad management.

At that, it isn't exactly bad management that he charges, but no management whatever.

HAMILTON SPELL BINDING

Republican National Chairman John D. M. Hamilton is blamed by most of the Republican fault finders for the bungling of G. O. P. strategy.

Hamilton should be concentrating, they assert, upon executive duties.
 Instead, they point out, he is spending his time spell-binding personally, here, there and everywhere throughout the country.

They agree that he is an excellent spell-binder, smart as a whip and a very live wire, but while he is touring the states, they croak, the executive end of his task is going to rack and ruin. A certain amount of travel is recognized as necessary for a national chairman, but Hamilton is accused of overdoing it.

Furthermore, the Landonian leader is referred to as having made the Republican campaign almost more Hamiltonian than Landonian.

Democrats are asking:
 "Who's the candidate? Hamilton or Landon?"

Even Chairman Farley never has given the impression that he considered himself more prominent than President Roosevelt.

Republicans don't like that question, "Who's the candidate?"

TOO MANY PROMISES?

Hamilton also is accused of having failed to realize that he cannot make one set of promises in one section, which likes that set of promises, and another set of promises in some other section, which doesn't like the preceding set.

This could be done once, when promises could be made purely locally.
 It can't successfully be done now with localities exchanging information so readily and checking on conflicts between speeches.

Hamilton's critics surmise that because, hitherto, he has addressed only local audiences, and fails to realize that what he says is local nowhere, but is heard everywhere.

BILL LEMKE CONFIDENT

WASHINGTON—There is something a little pathetic about the candidacy of Bill Lemke for the Presidency of the United States.

He stands there, so cocksure, so confident, so smiling, smirking, so ready to talk about his campaign. You feel like taking him aside and warning him that he shouldn't talk so much or the newspapermen will take advantage of him. Then you realize that Bill wouldn't take kindly to that advice and you let him go on.

"When I become President," he says,
 "I'll let the people come in. I'll be at home to everybody. But of course, I can't see everybody. There'll have to be some arrangements made about that."

At first you think this is just Bill Lem-ke's sense of humor. But pretty soon he repeats himself. There are no "ifs" about it.
 It is "when I am elected" and "when I take over the White House."

There is no doubt about it. Lemke has talked himself into a hypnotic conviction that he is on the threshold of the White House already.

KILLS HIMSELF

A group of Congressmen were discussing Lemke's candidacy in the House restaurant just before the session adjourned, and one of them, a Republican, said:

"I know one sure way of licking Lemke.
 Have him appear regularly in the newsreels in every moving-picture house in the country. His face and voice are all that's needed to defeat him."

It is true that God must have been looking elsewhere when He fashioned the features of Bill Lemke. His bald, egg-shaped head has a dour, bucolic look, with which his smile—one of those frozen chorus girl varieties—is weirdly incongruous.

Lemke has been campaigning for public office most of his adult life, but his voice still strikes the audience with the soothing effect of a circus calliope. And apparently he has an inexhaustible supply of steam and no discretion in using it.

COMPLETE CONFIDENCE

"I really expect to be elected," he says.
 "A short time ago I stopped off to see Governor Olson of Minnesota. He's in a hospital. His enemies are trying to make out he's much sicker than he is. That's the old political game of discrediting a man. You can expect your character to be assassinated in politics."

"Everyone of the internes in his hospital is going to vote for me. Six of them promised me personally. All the people in the building in which the Union Party is located in Chicago are going to vote for me—elevator men and all. There's a fire burning in this country. People are sick and tired of both old parties."

"After I'm elected, one of the first things I'm going to do is to restore all the little lakes and ponds that they used to have out in Minnesota and the Dakotas."

rouse a country to patriotic, national action.

No doubt penalties for responsibility in serious accidents should be imposed by the courts, but except in the case of mental "dumb-bells," the spectacle of the results from negligent driving cannot fail to leave a beneficial impression on all who pass by the way.

Love isn't Important

By LOUISE JERROLD

COPYRIGHT L. C. PAGE & CO., INC. PUBLISHED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:
 Gay Elwell, check girl in a prominent Detroit club, meets a number of social elite when she is at a dinner party at the request of Doctor Wilson, a club member. One is Brock Carter who is very friendly toward Gay, another Wayne Adams who is both interested and annoyed by her; and finally, Tim Keenan and Christian Scott, both millionaires. Just as Wayne makes it evident he is beginning to care for Gay, he tells her during a party at a penthouse that he plans to return to New York shortly. Tim Keenan, who is pretending a deep interest in Gay to arouse the jealousy of his fiancée, Eleanor Randolph, and hasten her return from Europe, announces his plan for a house party.
 (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 26

AFTER SOME discussion, it developed that everyone at Wayne's party, with the exception of Mr.
 Scott and Dodo Carruthers, agreed to meet at Lake Paradise before noon on Saturday for Tim's house party. Mr. Scott's daughter was to be married at Saint Paul's Cathedral on Saturday morning, and Dodo was one of the bridesmaids, so these two were unable to accept the invitation.

"Well, then, that's settled," Tim got up from his chair, and stood directly beside Gay, his hand on her shoulder. "I'll be expecting you all, bright and early. Maybe we can get in a round of golf before lunch. Okay?"

"It will seem funny," Charlotte Vance remarked, "without Eleanor there. She's always been such a darling hostess at your parties."

Tim smiled cheerfully. "Don't worry about that. You'll have just as sweet a hostess this time.
 Miss Elwell's going to be there."

Gay could scarcely believe her ears. If Tim had wished to produce a sensation, he certainly succeeded. There was something mysterious in the silence which followed his words; an almost audible gasp from the women. They were all Eleanor's friends, and looked upon Tim as Eleanor's private and personal property. Gay could feel the shock of disapproval and amazement that ran through them. Such disloyalty from Tim Keenan! Such supreme impudence on the part of that cheek girl, to think she could take Eleanor Randolph's place!

... It was easy to guess their thoughts.
 "And now," said Tim, brightly,
 "how about a little music? Come on, Gay. Let's show them our idea of the Cuban rumba!"

While they danced, he exulted like a naughty boy over the shock he'd given Eleanor's friends.
 Lips close to Gay's ear, he whispered, "Guess that will give 'em something to talk about. Now play up, like a good girl. Do your stuff!"

Gay played up to the best of her ability. She and Tim danced the rumba cheek to cheek, eyes half closed, as though completely absorbed in the sensual music and in each other. When Brock tried to cut in, Tim waved him aside with a growl. "Find yourself another partner. Gay's dancing this number, and all the rest, with me!"

A little later they went out onto the roof, making sure that their departure was not overheard by anyone. Outside, Tim released a roar of laughter, and sank into a chair beside Gay.
 "That rumba dancing is warm work," he announced, mopping his brow, "but it's worth the effort.
 Did you see Grace glaring at us?
 You mark my words; by the time the week-end party is over, letters will be flying over to Paris that'll make Eleanor burn up. Either she'll come back, or I'll get the gate, good and proper. At least, she'll make up her mind whether she wants me or not."

"But this party at Lake Paradise!" Gay expostulated. "Why did you say I'd be there? You know I can't possibly."

"You'll be there, all right," Tim told her. "That's the only reason I'm inviting the crowd—have 'em see me giving you a big play. Just leave everything to me. Tim brushed her objections aside with

Her thoughts reverted to Wayne.

the confidence of a man accustomed to having his own way.
 "Now let's go inside. I think the gang's leaving."

The party was indeed breaking up. Christian Scott had already departed with Dodo, and Wayne was out in the foyer saying good night to the Vances. Brock and Grace were dancing, while Peggy sat on the sofa at the far end of the room, talking with her father.

"Well, it looks as if everybody's ready for home," observed Tim.
 "Get your things, youngster, and we'll skip along."

When Gay returned to the living room, Wayne was trying to induce Tim to stay a while.

"Why all the rush? It's still early. How about one more high-ball?"

Tim shook his head. "Thanks just the same, but I'm pretty tired.
 Been battling that board of directors since four this afternoon. He turned to Gay. "Ready? Then say good-by to your host, like a nice, polite little girl, and tell him you've had a good time."

Before Gay could speak, Wayne interrupted. "I brought Miss Elwell over here, and I intended to take her home again, Tim. There's no need for you to—"

"Not a need, but a pleasure," Tim broke in, blandly. "My car's downstairs, waiting. And there are a few things I want to whisper in this young lady's ear."

The room was quiet. Gay noticed that the phonograph had run down, and was buzzing aimlessly in the prolonged silence, though no one bothered to turn it off. She noticed, too, that Wayne was studying her.

"How about it, Gay?" he asked.
 She longed to go with Wayne.
 She knew clearly what refusal meant: if she turned him down now, before the others, he'd be through with her for good. He was too proud to forgive a snub.
 Everything would be over between them. ... But wasn't that exactly what she wanted?

And there was her promise to Tim. She'd given her word to play up to him in every way possible, now, before the others, she'd broken it. She couldn't let Tim down now, by refusing to ride home with him.

All this dashed through Gay's mind in the fraction of an instant.

 There was scarcely a pause between Wayne's question, and her laughing reply.

"How delightful to be so popular!" Blue eyes sparkling, she glanced from one man to the other.
 "But I'm simply dying to hear what Tim has to tell me, so I think I'll drive home with him!"

Tim kicked the starter in his big sport car, the motor caught, and he shot away. Gay laid her head back against the cushions, and gazed up into the black immensity of the sky.

Her thoughts reverted to Wayne and that inscrutable expression on his face when she, with Tim's hand on her arm, had made her adieu a few moments ago. Was Wayne really hurt because she had chosen to go with Tim? His manner had been that of a conventionally polite host, as he said good night.
 But underneath—

She sighed, then reproached herself. How silly to waste any sighs on Wayne. The best thing in the world for them both was a clean, decisive break. Tonight had proved to her conclusively that to be alone with him was playing with fire.

The drive home was soon over.
 She and Tim didn't talk much until he shut off his motor before the entrance of the apartment house.

Gay was glad of the friendly darkness. She always resented the dingy, tenement-like exterior of the flat. To be sure, dinginess had been her portion so far in life. But that fact made her hate it all the more bitterly. What a difference between this cheap, ugly place, and the gorgeousness of Tim's home!
 Well, some day, and in the not too far off future—

She laughed a little.

"What's the joke?" Tim leaned toward her.
 "You wouldn't understand. But —yes, you would. You'd been poor, too. I was laughing at myself, because I'm always ashamed of the house I live in."

"Move," he advised, briefly. "Get a nice flat somewhere. You'll have to live up to our new arrangement, and I've told you money's no object."

"I thought we'd settled that.
 I'm glad to do anything I can, but I won't take any money for it."

 Grew in a little garden all alone,
 A sweeter flower did Nature ne'er

 Nor fairer garden yet was never

The maidens danced about it morn

 And learned harids of it their diti-

The nimble fairies by the pale-

 Watered the root and kissed her

 But well-day!—the gardener care-

The maids and fairies both were kept away,
 And in a drought the caterpillars thrived

Themselves upon the bud and

 The fairest blossom of the gar-

Peculiarities of Pollen as Affecting Hay Fever realize that his annual battle is on.

There are many peculiarities about pollen, some of which can't be entirely explained. The ragweed is at once a Grade A pest and a successful plant, because it produces so many million pollen grains and because they are so small and light.

All the plants which cause hay fever fertilize by wind pollination.
 Other plants are either self-fertilized or cross fertilized by insect carriers. The pollen grains grow on the stamen of the flower, are the male element, and when dropped on the pistil penetrate and fertilize the plant ovary, which then develops into the seed. We may blame malaria on the female mosquito, and it is the female black widow spider that does the dirty work, but hay fever is caused by the males.

JOE LOUIS GUNS FOR ANOTHER SCHMELING BOUT AFTER CLUBBING SHARKEY

NEGRO DEFEATS EX-GOB BEFORE 29,331 THROUG

Boxing Commission To Rule Friday Whether Champ Will Meet German

NEW YORK, Aug. 19 (UP)—Another turn of boxing's wheel of fortune whirled Joe Louis back into the select circle of heavy-weight challengers today, the only man in his division ready to meet all comers.

Louis, the stigma of his Schmeling defeat only a hazy memory, swiftly smashed down Jack Sharkey, a hollow shell of the once magnificent boxer, in Yankee Stadium last night before a crowd of 29,331. The Brown Bomber's fists, landing with pre-Schmeling force, sent Sharkey to the canvas four times and left him a bloody, beaten wreck after one minute, five seconds of the third round of their scheduled 10-round bout. Louis weighed 199½, Sharkey 197½.

Up Comeback Trail With Sharkey added to Primo Carnera and Max Baer on his list of K. O.'d ex-champions, Louis headed back up the comeback trail while, oddly enough, his conqueror of two months ago, Max Schmeling, was stalemated in his campaign to regain the titleholder's toga.

Champion James J. Braddock, complaining of a mysterious injury to his left hand, won't fight Schmeling in September if he can get out of it.

Louis is ready to fight anybody, but most of all the man who blasted him into the only defeat of sky-rocket career—Schmeling.

The next turn of the wheel of fate destiny will be in the chambers of the New York State Athletic Commission Friday. The three commissioners will decide whether Braddock must fight Schmeling in September, will be allowed to wait until next year to meet the German, or will have his title vacated if he refuses to fight. The last possibility is remote but could happen. In that case, Schmeling and Louis might be named to fight for the title. With the title at stake, Schmeling says he would be willing to battle Louis again, but on that condition only.

Among Easiest Victims Sharkey, flabby about the body and puffy around the face, was one of Louis' easiest victims. The Detroit Negro hammered the garrulous gob ceaselessly in the first round, cornering him as if he were a novice instead of a onetime

Bob Burns Takes Over Music Hall When Crosby Leaves for Hawaii

FILM ACTRESSES AND PIANIST ON THURSDAY HOUR

Joan Bennett, Dorothy Lamour to Aid Bing on Last Program

Bing Crosby will bow out of radio for the summer and begin a vacation of several months, when he sings his "aloha" on the Music Hall Thursday night. At the close of the broadcast over a WEA-FNBC network 9 to 10 p. m. (EST) Bing will confer on Bob Burns the title of "Keeper of the Music Hall," and charge him with the task of presenting the shows Bing has lined up until he returns again this fall. Big and Mrs. Crosby will vacation in Hawaii and also spend some time at his ranch in California, supervising the grooming of his horses for the fall racing season.

"I'm gonna do my best to keep the rafters ringin' in the Music Hall while the boss is away," Bob Burns declares, "but I don't want folks to think for one minute I'm gonna try an be a pretender to the throne as master of ceremonies. I positively ain't! Me and my bazooka is gonna blow all the fun we can into the mike, and while Bing is investigatin' Hawaii and its environs, the Kraft Music Hall is gonna have a whole lot more guest names from motion pictures than ever before, with a variety bill that I know is gonna tickle everybody includin' my relatives down in Arkansas."

Burns will have as assistant Jimmy Dorsey, maestro of the Music Hall orchestra.

On his final pre-vacation program, August 20, Bing will, as guests, Joan Bennett, film star; Dorothy Lamour, radio star who has just been signed for a long picture contract by Paramount; and Harold Bauer, internationally famous pianist.

REAL QUESTION ASKED
Sedley Brown and Allie Lowe

Miles, conductors of the "Husbands and Wives" program, have been getting a lot of letters from younger members of the radio audience who call themselves "future husbands" and "future wives." Many of these letters want help from present husbands and wives on the following question: "How can I tell if he (or she) really loves me?"

For the benefit of those who don't put any faith in the old method of pulling petals from a daisy, Brown and Mrs. Miles are bringing a number of people who have offered answers to the problems up to the microphone. They will be heard during the broadcast over a WJZ-NBC network next Sunday, August 23, at 6:30 p. m. (EST).

Also on the docket of the "meeting" is a discussion about who should have the last word in naming the baby—its father or mother.

"SINGING LADY" PRESENT
Greene Wicker, "Singing Lady", comes to Cleveland Wednesday night to headline the list of guest

During the program, Miss Wicker and Perkins will be made Great Lakes "Admirals" by authority vested in a representative of Governor Martin L. Davey.

It was said that one man of high rank among the loyalists was a former Jewish major in the German artillery reserve. The dispatch said there were about 100 Frenchmen and Belgians and many foreign artillerymen, with the loyalists.

RESCUE CREWS BRAVING DEATH TO SEEK MINERS

stroyed the tippie and the timbering of the main shaft. The main shaft was blocked by a 65 foot cave-in, and a higher ventilating shaft also was blocked by a cave-in. The rescuers hoped to dig through the ventilating shaft to a sloping shaft leading to the 110 foot level. They hoped that the trapped men had made their way to the far end of the mine, where, it was believed, comparatively pure air has permitted them to live.

Men Await Turns

The rescue workers comprised firemen, miners, and volunteers from Moberly and the surrounding community. They, with relatives of the victims, waited their turns to go below at the mine mouth.

At the 65 foot level, gas-masked rescuers hauled out the fire-blackened timbers that fell into the air shaft while the fire raged. There they plunged into the water filled horizontal air shaft and swam 20 feet, where they burrowed to clear the cave-in blocking the entrance to the slanting shaft.
